

Hello,

I'm writing to provide information about a professional development series for history and social studies teachers, which I hope you can share with teachers in your division through your newsletters, website, or social media channels. For ease of reference, I've summarized the information below. I'm also providing a link to our social media posts so that you can simply follow and share with your network. Thank you in advance for your help sharing this information!

Join the Historical Thinking Community of Practice - an online professional development series for teachers Seven sessions for $150

The Historical Thinking Community of Practice is designed for educators who have knowledge and experience working with historical thinking, but want to collaborate with a community of like-minded educators to further explore how to apply historical thinking in their context. Each session will focus on a key aspect of designing historical thinking learning activities, and participants will be invited to generate new ideas, give and receive feedback, and share experiences teaching and assessing historical thinking.

Schedule:

Sessions will be held online on Wednesdays from 7 pm to 8:30 pm ET

January 17, 2024: What is historical inquiry?

January 31, 2024: What is an effective historical inquiry question?

February 14, 2024: How to provide background knowledge and context?

February 28, 2024: How to find and use historical evidence effectively?

March 20, 2024: How to scaffold students' learning?

April 3, 2024: How to assess students' learning?

April 17, 2024: Presentations of learning
